Low dose radiation generally relieves arthritis pain of hip, knee, hand – and more caused by osteoarthritis, bursitis, synovitis and tendonitis. Thousands have been treated over decades with high rates of success. Radiation dose is very low, so treatment is considered very safe. Similar success is observed in people suffering from Plantar Fasciitis heel pain.

Treatments are easy and few for the patient – especially compared with surgery and lifelong medicines. A recent randomized study of knee arthritis receiving low dose radiation, versus so-called “sham radiation,” found those receiving proper radiation had beneficial response rates significantly higher than “sham radiation.”

Meaningful improvement in the proper dose group was observed. Authors (Kim et al) concluded that treatment, “led to significant improvement in outcome for patients with mild-to-moderate knee osteoarthritis. These findings support its potential as a conservative treatment option.”

It's easy to understand why Dr Lederman's low dose radiation program for Arthritis and Plantar Fasciitis treatment is so appealing and well received! May well help you, too!
